

Belfast's Hidden Gem for Home Interior Lovers

Just a stone's throw from Belfast City Hall, you could be forgiven for walking past the discreet exterior of 7 Wellington Place. But step inside and you will discover a unique interiors destination offering luxury contemporary and mid century furniture, lighting and design brands from Atelier-Design, as well as antique furniture and decor from French Vintage Vie.

Atelier-Design, owned by Interior Designer and Architect duo Victor Branco and James Fairley, provides Interior Design & Architectural consultancy services for private and commercial clients, working with the best names in the world of Interiors for wall coverings, fabrics, furniture and lighting. Speaking of their design style they say, "We pride ourselves on our signature UrbanLUXE look. Our work is modern, streamlined & luxurious with just the slightest nod to nostalgia. It's the new luxury." The studio works with exclusive contemporary european furniture and lighting brands and are brand ambassadors for Designers Guild Furniture and Christian Lacroix. They also offer bespoke curtain & upholstery services, exclusive fabrics and wall coverings and their own handmade rug service. www.atelier-design.co.uk

French Vintage Vie sources antique furniture and vintage home decor from France for individuals and business customers including interior designers, hotels, and venues. Speaking about the motivation behind her business, founder Louise Scott said: "France has such an amazing wealth of wonderful furniture and collectables that you just can't buy here. From grand Louis style chairs, marble tables and gilt mirrors to irresistible vintage treasures such as worn shutters and enamel jugs. Sourcing by hand at antique fairs means my customers end up with a piece which is authentically French, has a story to tell and is truly unique". www.frenchvintagevie.com
